Subj: Letter of recommendation; case of Cpl Robert L. ROHRER

1. Robert Lee ROHRER enlisted into the United States Marine Corps in August of 1958. His service record from that date to the present is excellent, especially in the educational field. He has spent most of his off-duty hours improving himself and preparing for the day he would be able to apply for college. In less than four years Cpl ROHRER has completed more than fifteen various off-duty courses, many of them college level, ^{and} has successfully completed his college level Educational Development Tests. However, Cpl ROHRER has progressed in his military training as rapidly as he has improved his education.

2. In a little over three years Cpl ROHRER has attained the rank of Cpl E-4, an accomplishment in itself. He has satisfactorily completed four military schools, qualified as an expert shooter with both the rifle and pistol and maintained a high Conduct and Proficiency rating. During the past eight months Cpl ROHRER has been working directly under my supervision. He has produced excellent results at a very difficult task; he always presented a very neat physical appearance; and, he set a good example for the younger Marines.

3. I believe that Cpl ROHRER's desire to learn coupled with his ability to study, even under such excruciating circumstances as he faced in military life, will render him an outstanding college student and a success in any task he may undertake thereafter.
